Frantic negotiations

Thump, thump, thump. In the frantic last hours of UN climate talks in Scotland, a senior diplomat from Luxembourg came sprinting down a hallway inside the summit venue, his hair flying as he whooshed by clutching a sheaf of papers, only to vanish inside an office as abruptly as he appeared. In the final hours, there were hours after hour of negotiation over what in some ways seems the smallest of issues. Urges vs. 'requests was one raging debate as curtains came down for COP 26. In fact, it was all about one of the biggest issues imaginable: how firmly nations commit to solid new steps to stave off a level of temperature rise that promises to wipe out some of the nations represented in these talks. The final stretch of negotiations over what nearly 200 governments will do next about fossil fuels heating the Earth to disastrous levels was like that Friday: country delegations haggle to get as much of their stand as possible, ambitious or stingy, into the final deal that will emerge at the talks close. US diplomats mostly worked behind closed doors in the closing hours, with terse signs on the glass. In most other country offices South Korea, Ivory Coast, Austria, and others open doors showed rooms full of diplomats bent intently over their laptops, eyes fixed on their screen and fingers flying over the keyboard. Chinese diplomats crowded into one of their offices with multiple red Chinese flags draped on the walls outside -- stopped, laughed and took photos when a wayward robin hopped in among them, lost in the warren of temporary tents and event center. There was muted excitement in the talks' closing hours in India's delegation office. A vase with fresh pink lilies inside the office, while delegates sat cross legged on the floor, typing furiously with furrowed brows on their laptops. Endless cups of chai flowed in preparation for what would be a long night. The past few days have been a flurry of bilateral meetings for the Indian minister, Bhupender Yadav, and his top officials. Some of the delegations were returning to India Saturday where there are other challenges to tackle: not least among them New Delhi's annual surge in air pollution that leaves its inhabitants gasping. But the core team, including the minister and top bureaucrats, will only fly out Sunday. The Indian delegation for the past two weeks has been getting home-cooked meals' for dinner from a British restaurateur who runs curry houses across Britain. Chapatti with vegetarian curries are usually on the menu. The fare at the conference's cafes: egg mayonnaise sandwiches on soft white, chicken mayonnaise sandwiches on soft white, pork and pickle sandwiches, on soft white. In two weeks, the words I love this sandwich have never been overheard.

Rlys revert to pre-Covid fares, dates not decided

New Delhi, Nov 13: Under pressure from passengers over hike in fares, the Railways on Friday issued an order to discontinue the 'special' tag for mail and express trains and revert to pre-pandemic ticket prices with immediate effect. Since the coronavirus-triggered lockdown was eased, the Railways has been running only special trains. It started with long-distance trains and now, even short-distance passenger services are being run as special trains with "slightly higher fares" to "discourage people from avoidable travels". In a letter to the zonal railways on Friday, the Railway Board said trains will now be operated with their regular numbers and fares will revert to normal pre-Covid prices. Ticket prices of special trains and holiday special trains are marginally higher. "In view of the COVID-19 pandemic, all regular mail/express trains were being operated as MSPC (mail/express special) and HSP (holiday special). It has now been decided that the MSPC and HSP train services, included in the Working Time Table, 2021, shall be operated with regular numbers and with fares as applicable for the concerned classes of travel and type of train, as per the extant guidelines. "This issues with the concurrence of Passenger Marketing Directorate of Railway Board," the order dated November 12 said. In another order, the Railway Board clarified that the second class of such trains shall continue to run as reserved except for any relaxation permitted in a special case. It also said that for tickets booked in advance, no difference of fare either is to be collected by Railways or any refund shall be permitted. Neither order however specifies when the zonal railways are required to revert to their pre-Covid regular services. "The zonal railways have been instructed. While the order is with immediate effect, the process will take a day or two," a senior official said. "With this, more than 1,700 trains will be restored in the next few days. The first digit will now not be zero as was in the case of special trains," another official said. Officials, however, said curbs introduced because of Covid, such as temporary restrictions on concessions, bedrolls and meal services, would remain in effect. With the operation of special trains and no concessions, the Railways' revenue has seen substantial growth. The transporter registered an increase of 113 per cent in earnings from the passenger segment during the second quarter of 2021-2022 as compared to the first.

Climate talks soften stance on fossil fuel phaseout

Finding loopholes, excuses not way forward: Greta

Glasgow, Nov 13: Negotiators at this year's UN climate talks in Glasgow appeared to be backing away Friday from a call to end all use of coal and phase out fossil fuel subsidies completely, but gave poor countries hope for more financial support to cope with global warming. The latest draft proposals from the meeting's chair called on countries to accelerate the phaseout of unabated coal power and of inefficient subsidies for fossil fuels. A previous draft on Wednesday had been stronger, calling on countries to accelerate the phasing out of coal and subsidies for fossil fuel. While the chair's proposal is likely to undergo further negotiation at the talks, due to end Friday, the change in wording suggested a shift away from unconditional demands that some fossil fuel exporting nations have objected to. US climate envoy John

Not eliminating coal, says US Envoy Kerry

Kerry said Washington backed the current wording. We're not talking about eliminating coal, he told fellow climate diplomats. On government funds flowing into fossil fuels, Kerry said: Those subsidies have to go. We're the largest oil and gas producer in the world and we have some of those subsidies, he said. Kerry said it was a definition of insanity that trillions were being spent to subsidize fossil fuels worldwide. We're allowing to feed the very problem we're here to try to cure. It doesn't make sense.
